Third-Party Bookings & 24-Hour Rule

Booked Through Expedia, Kayak, Priceline, etc.:

24-hour rule still applies:  YES (federal law)

BUT - Important differences:

Where to cancel:

- Must contact the third-party site (not Alaska directly)
- Each OTA has own cancellation process
- Some require phone call, others allow online

Processing time:

- May be slower than direct Alaska booking
- Refund goes through third party first, then to you

Alaska's role:

- Alaska honors the cancellation
- But third party controls refund process

 Third-party booking issues? Try calling +1 (844) 212-9096 - Alaska may be able to assist even though booked elsewhere.

Corporate/Business Travel & 24-Hour Rule

Company-Paid Tickets:

24-hour rule applies:  YES

Special considerations:

- Refund goes to corporate payment method
- May need manager approval before canceling
- Corporate travel policies may override

Best practice: Check with your company's travel department before canceling.

 Corporate booking questions? Call +1 (844) 212-9096 for business travel desk.

What Doesn't Qualify for 24-Hour Cancellation

These situations don't get free 24-hour cancellation:

1. Flights departing within 6 days or less

- Book: Monday
- Flight: Saturday (5 days away)
- Result: Standard cancellation fees apply from the start

2. After 24-hour window expires

- Booked: Monday 2 PM
- Trying to cancel: Wednesday 3 PM (over 24 hours)
- Result: Standard fees apply

3. No-shows

- Didn't cancel, simply didn't show up
- Result: Ticket value usually forfeited entirely

4. Already-traveled flights

- Can't cancel a flight you already took
- Result: No refund possible

 Outside 24-hour window? Call +1 (844) 212-9096 to explore other options (eCredit, change fees, etc.)
