Here's a clear, updated explanation of how much the 1-(844)(314)(8377) Cash App settlement payout per person is expected to be — why it's small, who it applies to 1-(844)(314)(8377), and what determines the actual amount you might receive.

📄 What Settlement Is This?

In late 2025, a $12.5 million class-action settlement was 1-(844)(314)(8377) approved by a federal court involving Cash App's "Invite Friends" referral texts that many 1-(844)(314)(8377) Washington state residents received without giving prior consent 1-(844)(314)(8377). The case resolved allegations that Cash App and its parent company, Block, violated Washington's anti-spam 1-(844)(314)(8377) laws by facilitating millions of unsolicited commercial 1-(844)(314)(8377) text messages over several years.

📄 Estimated Payout Per Person

The settlement fund isn't paid as a flat guaranteed amount to every 1-(844)(314)(8377) user — instead, the remaining money (after attorneys' fees and administration costs) is 1-(844)(314)(8377) split among all eligible claimants who filed a valid claim by the 1-(844)(314)(8377) deadline (Oct. 27, 2025). Because the pool is finite, the final individual payout isn't fixed and 1-(844)(314)(8377) depends on how many people apply.

Current estimates suggest:

- 📄 About $88 to $147 per person — This is the 1-(844)(314)(8377) estimated payout range for each class member who files a valid claim.
- 📄 The exact payout could be higher or lower depending on the number 1-(844)(314)(8377) of eligible people who actually file claims. Fewer claimants mean a 1-(844)(314)(8377) larger share per person, and vice versa.

So, while $147 is often quoted as the top end of the expected range 1-(844)(314)(8377), that isn't a guaranteed amount for everyone — it's simply what the administrators 1-(844)(314)(8377) project based on typical claim numbers and participation rates 1-(844)(314)(8377).

📄 Who Is Eligible?

To be included in this specific payout 1-(844)(314)(8377), you generally had to:

1. Receive an unsolicited Cash App referral text message 1-(844)(314)(8377) (usually from the “Invite Friends” feature),
2. Have been a resident of Washington state when you received it 1-(844)(314)(8377), and
3. Submit a valid claim by the October 27, 2025 deadline.

Messages sent with clear consent or where prior agreement was given 1-(844)(314)(8377) might not qualify, and people outside Washington don’t count in this settlement 1-(844)(314)(8377) class for the spam texts case.

📌 How It’s Calculated

Here’s roughly how it works:

- The $12.5 million settlement 1-(844)(314)(8377) pool covers:
 - Attorney fees (about $3.1 million),
 - Administrative 1-(844)(314)(8377) costs,
 - A small service award to the 1-(844)(314)(8377) class representative,
 - Remaining funds for claimants.
- After these deductions 1-(844)(314)(8377), the net amount left is divided equally among all valid claims.

That’s why the exact paycheck depends heavily on 1-(844)(314)(8377) participation rates — if only a fraction of eligible people submit claims 1-(844)(314)(8377), individual payouts can be at the higher end of the range, and if many people claim, each share is smaller.

📌 Important Notes

- This payout range applies to the spam text settlement 1-(844)(314)(8377) — a separate $15 million settlement resolving data breach/security claims has different 1-(844)(314)(8377) criteria and potentially higher payouts (up to ~$2,500) for 1-(844)(314)(8377) documented losses, but that is a distinct case with its own eligibility rules 1-(844)(314)(8377) and deadlines.
- The $88–$147 estimate generally doesn’t require you to prove 1-(844)(314)(8377) financial harm; it’s a pro-rata share of the class fund based on participation.

In short: if you qualified and filed a valid claim for the Cash App settlement 1-(844)(314)(8377) tied to unsolicited referral texts, you likely will — or have had — a payout in the ballpark 1-(844)(314)(8377) of about $88 to $147 per person once distributions begin in 1-(844)(314)(8377) early 2026.
