

Windows 8.1 activation tool

Support Number : +1 (844) 886-3118 The answer depends on how you get the license for the OS. If it is factory installed, bundled with the hardware, then the license would also be included in the factory image.

I don't know how Dell does it, but with my Lenovo ThinkPad, I can go to Microsoft website and download the iso image and install it and it will be automatically activated since the license is in the UEFI. The Windows installer will read the information and I won't even get the question to enter product key.

So, I suggest you refer to the documentation of your computer and make sure about the license. Also factory settings might need the recovery or factory image that is usually installed in recovery partition. If you lose the partition, you might need to request or re-order the image from Dell.
